Effective English Interventions Training

Helping put vulnerable children back on track with their peers

The aim of interventions is ultimately to minimise underachievement therefore bridging the attainment gap within peer groups.

Effective intervention programmes should be time limited, tailored and based on independent evidence of past success. They are usually taught on a one-to-one basis or to small groups by specialist teachers or highly trained teaching assistants.

Training can also take place in-house for single or groups of schools, providing effective use of Pupil Premium funding.

Delivering effective and measurable English interventions

All our intervention programmes are nationally recognised; trainers are accredited by the Institute of Education, UCL and Edge Hill University. This provides quality assurance and ensures that teachers and teaching assistants can deliver intervention programmes that make a noticeable difference to those children receiving this support.

Our English intervention training programmes range from lighter touch interventions, such as 'Boosting Reading Potential@ Primary' through to the more intensive 'Reading Recovery' programme – an intervention that is accredited by the Institute of Education and was at the heart of the successful 'Every Child a Reader' approach. These programmes cover pupils in Reception, Year 1 through to Year 9.
